A BOLD THIEF

Runs Away With an Express Wagon in Chicago—Only $200 Worth of Goods Missing.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—An express wagon, belonging to the United States Express company, was quietly and very coolly taken possession of and driven off by a slightly built young man, wearing a grey overcoat and a derby hat, about half-back last night. Scores of people saw the man commit the daring theft, but his manner gave no intimation that he was other than the pretended to be one-horse driver for the express company. William Maloney, the regularly employed driver, was finishing up his rounds for the day among the tilloring establishments, on Market street. He stopped at the corner of Van Buren to get a parcel. His "watch boy," Willie Edson, sat on the box of the wagon while Maloney collected the packages. Willie became cold and left his perch to kick his heels against the storm door of Mason & Hudson's wholesale house. The thief who has not yet been caught, leaped nimbly into Willie's seat and drove away. When he got out of sight little Willie ceased kicking his heels and he and Maloney started for the express office. All the police stations in the city were notified to "look out for a one horse United States express wagon, stop all of them and make rigid enquiry before you allow them to pass." This was done, and at 10 o'clock the house and wagon and four pigeons in a coop were found in an alley off Eighteenth street, near Canal street, by Sergeant Laughran, of the Canalport avenue station. The loss by the larceny is not more than $200.

A STRANGE SUICIDE.

The Omaha Dentist Said to Have Been Robbed Before Death.

CHICAGO, Jan. 12—Friends of Dr James Charles, an Omaha dentist who committed suicide last week in the Brewster hotel in this city, believe that he was robbed before he shot himself. When he was at the hotel the first time he was well dressed, had plenty of money and wore large diamonds and a costly gold watch. When he reappeared at the hotel, after an absence of a few days, he borrowed a quarter with which to send a telegram asking for funds. He was penniless, without jewelry and clad in wretched clothes. He had intended, he said, to go to Omaha, but had been beaten and robbed in a hotel near the depot. He did not say what hotel or what depot. An intimate friend of Dr. Charles says: "I will always believe that Dr. Charles was robbed and assaulted. It was not characteristic of the man to associate with people of a low class. His clothes were always of the latest cut, and he had a hobby of wearing high priced diamonds and jewelry. He carried an excellent watch when I saw him last, and all was gone when he returned to the hotel a few days previous to his death. I felt at the time of the inquest that something should have been done to clear away the mystery. There was certainly something behind it all, and I am satisfied the proper solution has not been reached."

WILL PROBABLY DIE.

The Royal Family Give Up Hopes for the Recovery of the Prince.

LONDON, Jan. 12—The latest reports from the bedside of the Duke of Clarence and Avondale, the eldest son of the prince of Wales, who is dangerously ill from influenza, complicated with pneumonia, at Sandringham, are far from reassuring. It is not denied that the young prince's condition is most serious. His constitution is weak, and important developments are expected within the next twenty-four hours. The utmost anxiety is expressed in royal circles as to the result of the duke's illness. Nobody would be astonished if the worst was to happen. The best physicians in England have been summoned to Sandringham, and the queen herself is expected to arrive there during the day, should the duke not show signs of improvement. Many members of the royal family have already gone to Sandringham and others are expected there. Telegrams expressing sympathy with the sick prince and making inquiries as to his condition are pouring in upon the prince of Wales.

WHALE BACKS.

The New Style Freight Vessels to be the War Ships of the Future.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., Jan 12—Captain McDougall, inventor of the whale back, is figuring on applying the vessel to war service, adapting barges to coast defence. By means of water ballast they can be submerged leaving only a small turret for a lookout, forward, and the bow above water. In the bow the heavy guns will be placed and while one is being fired the other will be charged below in the vessel. Captain McDougall has taken out patents on the vessel in this and all foreign countries.

THE ACT OF KINDNESS.

Minister Egan Escorts His Children Guests to Safety.

VITURBIAN Jan 12—A great deal of talk is heard about the action of United States Minister Egan escorting three Balmaceda refugees, Juan and William McKenna and Jose Carrera, from the American location at Santiago to Valparaiso on Saturday, and placing them aboard the United States cruiser Yorktown. But the knowledge that he did so was with the best approval of the new administration, has disarmed severe criticisms. The press gives considerable space to the subject but discusses it mildly and in a fair spirit, and, while not condemning Minister Egan for his action, asserts that the United States government must assume the responsibility if its minister loses the respect of the public for his action, as an escort to such characters degrades him to the ranks of a policeman.

TELEGRAPHERS STRIKE.

The Misunderstanding With the Arangas Pass Road Likely to Create a General Strike in the South.

LAREDO, Texas, Jan 12—Upon telegraphic information expected here at any moment as to the acceptance or refusal by connecting roads of the Aransas Pass freight bangs the question of the tying up of three, and possibly six, great southern roads. During the last twenty-four hours a number of the Aransas Pass striking telegraphers have reached this point, and have laid singly or in pairs quiet talks with the railroad men of the Mexican National, the International and Great Northern, and the Texas-Mexican systems, all of which have connection with the Aransas Pass railroad. The telegraphers are ostensibly there on their way to Mexico to obtain positions, but the presumption is that they are here to strengthen the determination of the railroad men in Laredo to strike with the Aransas Pass employes in case the trio of roads mentioned undertake to handle the Aransas Pass company's freight. A freight train will leave Alice, Texas, on the Texas Mexican road this morning. An attempt will be made there to put the Aransas Pass roads freight upon it that is billed to this place. If the men there handle it or if non-union men take it, the man here will undoubtedly go out.

GREAT HARDSHIPS.

A Severe Storm Makes Things Uncomfortable for Frontier Soldiers.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 12—The scouting operations of the United States troops on the Rio Grande frontier have been attended during the past two days with great hardships, owing to the severe norther, accompanied by rain, that has blown. Capt. F. E. Chase, of the Third Cavalry, with his troops, is supposed to be in the heart of the revolutionist's stronghold around the Palito Blanco ranch. No news of any kind has been received from him at military department headquarters here for the past forty-eight hours. He is supplied with twenty days' rations and an experienced scout. Porfirio Garcia, general manager of the affairs of ex-Governor Gonzales, of Chihuahua, Mexico, arrived here this evening. He states that there was no signs of a revolutionary uprising in that state. When he left there the Garza movement was looked upon as insignificant. The people there, he states, are well satisfied with the administration of Lauro Carrillo, the present governor.

A STRANGE PHENOMENON.

Steam Issuing From the Mountain at Thirty Degrees Below Zero.

CASCADE SPRINGS, S. D., Jan. 12—Thirty degrees below zero was registered yesterday. The dense cold revealed the fact that huge volumes of steam were issuing from holes in the mountain sides 300 feet above the town. Parties who have just returned from there say that the mountain side is honey-combed with holes made by the steam. It is thought the mountain contains a subterranean lake of hot water, and a shaft will probably be driven to test the matter.

Two Killed and Thirty-Eight Wounded on the Monon—A Fatal Collision on the Lehigh Valley Road.

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 12—The fast train on the "Monon" route last evening encountered a broken rail at Nicholson's crossing, just north of the city, and the train left the track, rolling down a steep embankment twenty feet high. The stove in the first coach was overturned and the car was soon destroyed. The next coach was torn to pieces. It was filled with people, not one of whom escaped injury. The parlor car toppled over on top of the coaches. Madame Ivan Rokey, a member of the City Burlesque Opera company, and Benjamin Bamburg, a traveling salesman of Cincinnati, were killed instantly. CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 12—At 11.30 o'clock last night, while the wrecking train was returning from the wreck at Nicholson crossing, it collided with an extra freight train standing at the depot. Ten cars were wrecked, five of which, loaded with oil, caught fire and were entirely consumed, burning the bodies of the dead men. The engineer and fireman escaped uninjured.

SHE GOT THE WEALTH.

A Divorced Wife of a Wealthy Man Scoops in His Estate.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 12—Some time ago Patrick B. Bradley, janitor of a tenement house, died, leaving an estate valued at $40,000. No will being found the public administrator took charge of the property. A short time after Bradley's death a woman who claimed to have been the wife of the deceased janitor appeared and claimed the estate. The public administrator took up the claims of the woman and found from the records that the couple had been divorced in 1879, but after the divorce she still continued to live with Bradley as his wife, at the request of the deceased. Her attorneys raised the point that a second marriage of the common law order followed the divorce. Judge Warner yesterday handed down his decision sustaining the claim of Mrs. Bradley.

MAY JOIN GARZA.

Sons of Old Mexican Families Talk of Bolting Diaz.

PUEBLO, Col., Jan. 12—A rumor is current on the streets today that an effort is being made by a few young Mexican men in Las Animas, Huerfan, and Costilla counties to raise a strong company to join Garza on the Texas frontier, and the plan is being agitated by some of the younger sons of the once well known families. They argue that they have nothing to lose and everything to gain. That if Garza fails in overthrowing President Diaz, which they claim to believe is almost impossible, they can quietly return to their homes and take up the old life once more, but should he win wealth and power are within their grasp.

Andrews and Miss McGregor are living in Paris, France.

WAS NOT A MURDERER.

Thomas Callahan, a Pardoned Convict, Proclaims His Innocence.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Jan. 12—Thomas Callahan died today, protesting his innocence of the crime of murder, of which he was adjudged guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary for life in 1863. He served but twelve years of his imprisonment when pardoned by the late Governor Hendricks. Calla han was a native of Ireland, and became a subject of the United States at the time of the late war. A draft had been made for men to complete a regiment, and at a meeting, one night, to fill the quota, a dispute arose, and, in the melee, a man was stabbed to death. Callahan was arrested for the murder, found guilty and sentenced to Michigan City for life. He protested his innocence, and on this plea, supplemented by the efforts of influential citizens, he was pardoned, and returned to this city. This was in 1875, and until his death Callahan lived the life of a hermit. He selected for his habitation a tumble-down cottage, and though possessed of ample means, preferred to live in complete seclusion. He never cut his hair, and at the time of his death it hung in long tresses down his back. For seventeen years he has protested his innocence, frequently in his delirium calling aloud for mercy, and pleading with God to spare him the curses of the people who believed him guilty. Among Callahan's personal effects were found several messages to the people, in which he disclaimed any knowledge of the crime. Callahan is believed to have been worth in the neighborhood of $50,000.

A Prominent Hicksville Man Arrested on the Above Charge.

DEFIANCE, Ohio, January 12—This afternoon Frank L. Forlow, a prominent attorney and citizen of Hicksville, this county, was arrested in this city on a charge of forgery, the affidavit being sworn to by his father, Amos Forlow, and his grandfather, Benjamin Forlow, both well known and prominent citizens of Hicksville. The crime charged consists of forging four promissory notes, aggregating the amount of $1,000. All but $1,200 is held by parties in this city. The $1,500 now being negotiated in Chicago. These notes are made jointly and bear the names of F. L. Forlow, his father and grandfather. Mr. Forlow's relatives deny signing these notes, hence the arrest.

The matter has been in abeyance for several days, and mutual friends here have endeavored to effect a settlement by paying off the notes and gaining possession of them. Upon being arraigned Forlow plead not guilty, and was required to give a bond in the sum of $500, and this he declined to give and was placed in jail to await his trial, Thursday. He is a member of the Methodist church and president of a loan association at Hicksville, and there are rumors that charges of embezzlement will be brought against him.

The bride-elect is the daughter of the well known local manager of the National and American express business. Mr and Mrs Parsons will be "at home" Wednesday in February at 164 Lincoln avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

The Chicago Herald, in its society column of Sunday, says: "On Friday evening last, at the home of W. M. BECOMING SERIOUS.

The Fight With the Ferocious Beasts Near Leipsic, Ohio.

The hunt for the ferocious beasts, known as the pumas, was continued among the swamps around Leipsic, Ohio, all day yesterday, the hunters and dogs having started out from camp early in the morning. Near North creek two of the beasts attacked W. A. Lewis, who was driving in a buggy. They sprang at him and lacerated his arms and legs in a terrible manner, but bit by emptying his revolvers into their body, and whipping up his horses, he managed to escape. The hounds of Dr. H. L Kinnaman, of Tiffin, were at hand and gave battle to the beasts, which drew them away from Lewis, who by this time was a full half mile in advance of the hunters. The battle between the hounds and the pumas was a fierce one while it lasted, but superior strength of the pumas began to tell, and in less than three minutes the four fine hounds were cut to pieces. J. H. Arnold, Gus Steehschulte and A. L. Tinkham, who had been following the trail since 4 o'clock in the morning, with their hounds in leash, came from the woods on the south side of the road about one quarter of a mile from where the hounds met the pumas were fighting, and they at once sent their dogs to the rescue, hoping by this means to hold the pumas until they could get near enough to get a shot at them with their Winchesters, but before they could get close enough their hounds had followed in the wake of the others, and the beasts sprang into the bush, leaving the snow covered with blood for a distance of several rods. As the beasts sprang to the side of the road a volley was sent after them. The beasts attered a series of fearful howls and disappeared. Chase was given by the hunters and a score of hounds and not long afterwards they came on the beasts again near the swamp, where the hounds made their rendezvous. Here another fight was had and J. K Baugh man was terribly bitten by the beasts and several more of the hounds were torn limb from limb.

J. H Dazey was ambushed by one of the brutes and carried home in an unconscious condition, having been badly hurt about the head and shoulders. While passing through a clump of bushes Henry Lamre and Frank Lewis came upon one of the beasts feeding upon a hog, and both fired at the brute, which uttered a terrible scream and bounded away, leaving a trail of blood for some distance, when the trail was lost in the darkness.

The excitement at Leipsic is intense, and today there are 1,000 men in the swamp, as a large number came from Toledo and other cities to join the chase, and an escape is impossible. It has just been learned that John May, a hunter from Leipsic, has been terribly hurt by one of the beasts.

THERE is more sickness in the city this winter than ever before.

The cold weather failed to kill la grippe, as many contended it would do.

The political conventions of both parties are proving very interesting this year.

The prospects of the ice crop have materially improved within the last several days.

SENATORS VOORHEES and Turpie will make a vigorous fight in the senate against Judge Woods' confirmation.

GEN. REES WILLIAMS, the veteran editor of the Warsaw Daily Times, is outspoken in his advocacy of Blaine for the presidential nomination.

NEW YORK'S well known society woman, Mrs Marshall O Roberts, who took to husband Colonel Ralph Vivian, of the English army, is said to have presented him a policy on her own life for $100,000.

One of the amusing incidents of last Saturday's republican mass convention was the motion of Hon. J. W. Heyden to put all the democrats out of the convention hall Mr. Hayden claimed that the democrats were making all the noise and should be excluded.

It is noted that most of the holidays this year will fall on Monday—among them Washington's birthday, Memorial day, the Fourth of July and Labor day. Christmas is down on the calendar for Sunday and will therefore be celebrated on Monday. The only legal holidays of 1892 to fall on other days will be Thanksgiving and election day.

The Huntington Herald introduces a recent appointee to office in that county in the following unique way: "He is a familiar name to the Herald. We had him on the list for four years as a reader of our 'valuable paper,' but we cannot discover that we ever got a cent for it. We shall be glad to write him a receipt whenever he can find time from the arduous duties of the office to which he has been appointed to make us a remittance."

SCRIBNER has been meditating upon the subject of the probable increase of the population in the United States, and it presents us with these startling conclusions. Since 1750 the increase has been from 1,250,000 to the neighborhood, in 1890, of 65,000,000. If this ratio of increase is a fair basis for prediction we shall have at the time when the twenty-eighth boy of today shall be forty years of age, in 1920, something like 160,000,000 of people in the United States and when that man of forty reaches his seventieth birthday (1950), we shall have close upon 400,000,000 population.

THE city of New York has more printers now than the papers can give employment. A telegram from that city says: "Typographical Union No. 6 has resolved that in view of the fact that over four hundred staunch union men are walking the streets idle all types upon the city morning papers should for one month work only five nights a week instead of six in order that work might be afforded to the unemployed. Another resolution was adopted donating $10 toward the expenses of any member of the union who left for another city in search of work. It was decided that for the present no more outside cards should be received."

The last days of many of our great men have been peculiarly pathetic. Sam Randall, who was in terrible pain during his last hours, looked up just before he died at his wife and smiled and uttered the words "Mother." For forty-eight hours Mr. Randall had not left his bedside and his hand was in hers as he passed away. Randall's death was caused by overwork and lack of exercise. This, with his peculiar temperament, brought on the gout and he died in his prime. General Logan's death was full of pathos. His last act was to try to whisper to his wife, and General Hancock's last words were to Mrs Hancock, whom he called, using her pet name "Ellie." He then attempted to say "good by," but he had only uttered the word "good," when he relapsed into unconsciousness and expired. Judge Jeremiah Black died with a prayer on his lips, and just before he left this world he said to his wife, "How can I fear to cross the dark river when my Father waits for me on the other side?" He then prayed, saying "Oh that most beloved and merciful Heavenly Father, from whom I had my being and in whom I have ever trusted, if it be thy will, grant that my sufferings end and that I speedily be called home to Thee and oh, bless and comfort my Mary." A few moments after this he died. Vice President Wilson picked up a hymn book just before he died and looked for a long time at his wife's picture which was pasted in front of it and Henry Clay's words during the delirium of his dying hours were "Mother, mother, mother, and my dear wife." John Quincy Adams dropped down in his chair in the house of representatives at Washington and he was carried out into one of the committee rooms where he died. Cupping and mustard poultices revived him for a moment and an hour after his attack he said: "This is the last of earth, but I am content, and he then died."

A STUDY of the churches are organizing their forces to go to the people instead of expecting the people to come to them. A number of plans have been tried, such as home to home visitation by committees from the church, but these have been found to be ineffectual. Everything now looks toward an increase of ministerial forces in churches. Instead of one minister in a congregation there are to be brotherhoods of clergymen whose whole lifework and purpose is to be to "go" like the seventy into all the parts of the community and bring the gospel to the people. Of all the plans suggested this has the most promise in it.

ABOLISH THE FEE SYSTEM.

An effort will be made by a number of democratic representatives in congress to have the appropriations committee recommend that the fee system in federal offices be abolished so far as can well be done. A number of congressmen especially in southern states, urge that the continuance of the fee system results in much hardship to people in their states through deputy marshals and other court officers stalking the laws for the purpose of filing cases in courts and thereby increasing the emoluments of their offices. It is urged that the government would really save a great deal of money paying salaries to such employes as are necessary in fee offices and requiring that all fees shall be turned into the United States treasury. Vigorous opposition, however, is expected to this reform and the appropriations committee has not yet got to work, so that it is uncertain what will be the outcome. One of the attempts to do away with pensioners in federal offices is of considerable interest to the numerous postmasters of the first-class throughout the country. At present stamped envelopes are furnished to postmasters at a cost of a fifth of a cent for each envelope. No profit is realized on these by the postmaster when he sells them in large lots. When sold singly or in small quantities there is a profit of four-fifths of a cent on each envelope, and Mr. O'Neill of Missouri, who intends to urge congress to change the practice, says that the result is a considerable profit at the end of the year to postmasters who are in receipt of a regular fixed salary. He will urge that hereafter stamped envelopes be furnished at cost in five-cent lots, the price of the stamp not included. The government, he says, should not make a profit on these and other conveniences it furnishes to the people, but should give them at cost whenever practicable, and any profits arising where the exact cost can not be conveniently fixed should not go to salaried officers.

Belasco and DeMille's latest success, "Men and Women," was presented for the first time in this city at the Temple last evening by Chas Frohman's home company. The name of Frohman is always a guarantee for a fine entertainment, and last evening's production was no deviation from the rule. The large audience present attested their appreciation by repeated applause, calling Miss Lyon before the curtain twice. The plot is laid in New York and is replete with incidents of every day life among the banking institutions of the country, showing man's duplicity and woman's fidelity in a true light. All the characters were well taken, and the play was magnificently staged. It is safe to say, that should "Men and Women" return to this city the "standing room only," card will be hung out early in the evening.

The Conried Opera company will present the New York Casino success, "Poor Jonathan," at the Masonic Temple Thursday night. The performance is magnificent in every detail. During its run of 250 nights at the "Casino," in New York, it played to the largest money receipts of any production at that popular house. The cast embraces nearly fifty people, including Ida Selley as "Harriet," Fannie D Hall as "Molly," Louise Hilliard as "Miss Big," J Albrich Libbey as "Ruby gold," George M Herbert as "Tobias Quickly and A. W T McGillin as "Jonathan Tripp." The orchestra will be directed by Mr. Maurice Grau.

The following is from the St. Louis Republic: "Mrs. H. M. Burgess, of Fort Wayne, Ind., was a passenger on the wrecked westbound Wabash train, near Aladin, Ill. Her baggage was entirely consumed. A little half turned miles belonging to her baby was the only item of apparel recovered from the trunk. Her body, Theodore, was knocked senseless. She was enroute to Moberly to visit her uncle, E. McCabe, a conductor on the Wabash."

At a meeting of the Merchant Tailors' exchange held at the office of Bloedel & Dellhaven last evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Gottlieb C. Thomas; vice president, G. Schmidt; secretary, John A. Thieme; treasurer, H. C. Meyer; executive committee, Perry Dehaven, G. A. Rabes and J. B. Gumme.

Hayden's hill and pond in South Wayne has been a popular resort for skating and exacting the past few evenings.

He is in his fifty-third year, a lawyer by profession, having been admitted to the bar at Ottawa, Ill., in 1867. Mr. Perkins had served previously four years in the army, as adjutant and captain in a regiment of colored soldiers the greater part of that time. His first office in civil life was as county attorney of Labette county, Kansas. Subsequently he was a probate judge of that county two terms, and for nearly ten years held by appointment the office of judge of the eleventh judicial district of Kansas. He was elected to the forty-eighth congress as congressman at large, and to the forty-ninth, fiftieth and fifty-first congresses. His incumbency of Senator Plumb's chair will last about a year, in January, 1893, the Kansas legislature will elect a senator, him or some other man.

OPPOSED TO COLLEGE SOCIETIES.

Why Mr. Garrison Pegands Harvard Organizations Unfavorably.

"Hazing" in college would as college life itself. It grows naturally out of the fact that many young men are collected in one institution at an age when the blood bounds boisterously through the body, and they are "wild for fun." In most cases it is harmless, and the variety of it practiced at Harvard is generally innocuous. As a rule Mr. William Lloyd Garrison has no objection to protest against a practice that may be said to come under the general definition of "Hazing."

Some time ago his son was initiated into a secret society known as the "D. K. E.," and learned the initiation consisted of leaning six little spots on the arm with a cigar. Young Garrison took his search to ever soon after and his parents thought the initiation a great deal

PRESIDENT ELIOT.

It. Later another lad was initiated and seems to have got burned a little deeper than was necessary; so Mr. Garrison addressed an open letter to the president and faculty of Harvard, denouncing the whole secret society business and claiming that it produced much dissipation and immorality.

President Eliot made no formal reply, but in his direct questions explained that the faculty has nothing to do with secret societies and will take no action; that no one is under obligations to join them, that the initiate knows in advance that the ordeal will be severe, and that it is such an honor to be one of the "D. K. E.," popularly known as "Dickies," that candidates are many.

THE NEW KANSAS SENATOR.

He Has Had Considerable Experience as Judge and Congressman.

Hon Bishop W. Perkins is the successor of the late Senator Plumb, of Kansas, by the grace of Governor Humphreys and a sort of competitive examination of the friends and supporters of various candidates. As soon as Senator Plumb's death was announced their respective friends began to urge the appointment of ex-Senator Ingalls, Ben T. Simpson, George R. Peck, Major J. K. Hudson, J. W. Ady and others.

Governor Humphreys numbered the candidates in the order that applications were filed for them and gave full hearing to their supporters in the same order. At the end he named Mr. Perkins. The new senator was born in Rochester, Lorain county, O., Oct. 18, 1841, attended Knox academy at Galesburg, Ills., for some time, studied law, was admitted to practice and located at Ottawa, Ills., in 1867. He had in the meantime passed four years in the Union army, going out as sergeant in the Eighty third Illinois infantry and serving about two years as captain in the Sixteenth United States colored infantry.

He was elected probate judge of Labette county, Kansas, in 1869 and 1872, became district judge in 1873 and held that office nine years. He was elected to the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first congresses as a Republican, and went under in the "Alliance deluge" of 1890. He is now promoted to the senate, and will hold the seat till the legislature meets in 1893.

He Won After a Hard Fight.

The chairman of the London school board has almost arbitrary power over the interests of more than half a million children, and Rev. Joseph R. Diggle is the man. He got there the other day at the end of a fight which for heat, bitterness and persistence would have amazed a New York Democrat or an Indiana Republican.

Nearly all the teachers were against him because he is severe and favors low salaries. All the dissenting clergy opposed him because of his high church proclivities, and the liquor interests fought him frantically because he is notorious for temperance and temperance views. Nevertheless he got there. The Gladstonian clamors decided in his favor and put all that party's machinery to work for him. The "economy dodge," so fatal to it in England, was "played for all it was worth," as they say in America, and so the Rev. Diggle won. Now the Gladstonians claim this as a test of their strength for the approaching general election.

STRUCK THE WRONG MAN

An Amusing Episode in Which a Yankee Figures in France—An Important Personage Snubbed.

It was in the days when oil was first struck in Pennsylvania. Some one lucky possessor of some valuable land sold it at an excellent bargain. He had long had a desire to visit Europe, and as his present income enabled him to gratify his wish it was not long before he was on one of the ocean liners plowing his way to the Old World. He did England and Ireland in first class style, acquiring a fund of experience from contact with landlords and others that was certainly valuable, if only for a lifetime. Ireland was the last land he expected to be acquainted with.

Learning what he did at the price among those that spoke his own language, it made him in a measure curious to see how the counterparts of those gentry would treat him in sunny France and Italy. The few inquiries he made did not reassure him that Gallic or Italian lords were any less frugal or exacting than those of the British kingdom, so that he not unnaturally judged from past experience that so much of his time as was not employed in sleeping would be chiefly occupied in opening his pocketbook and making various payments and donations more or less just to almost every body he was brought in contact with.

Whether he was right or wrong in thus assuming that everything went so long as it was paid for, he could not positively decide for some time. The theory that it was all right had carried him through Paris and other of the principal cities, after visiting which he had come to Marseilles. Here his eyes were delighted with reading the legend on a water cart, and handling him a light for his cigar had the character of a special extra.

This went on for about half a day, when he had an alteration with an official whom he erroneously took for the man that blacked the boots. As neither understood the other too well, the traveler, possibly mistaking the garcon's natural vivacity for offensiveness, knocked him over a couple of trunks and down the stairs.

In a moment up rushed the proprietor. "Mon Dieu, monsieur," he cried. "You have killed the waiter!"

"Killed him, did I?" was the somewhat surprised answer. "Oh, well, charge him in the bill."—Philadelphia Times.

RAILWAY RUMBLINGS.

Character of the Men Who Handle the Throttle and Shovel Coal Into the Furnace—Local and Personal.

The average American engineer and fireman is a hardy, good natured fellow, used to long hours and hard work, but they would think themselves ill-used if an order should be issued for the abolition of the cab, that friendly retreat from inclement weather which is now considered an absolute necessity on all engines, says the Grand Rapids Democrat. And yet in merry and highly-cultured England, on the majority of railroads, the engines in use are built minus the cab, thus forcing the engineer and fireman to work without shelter in all kinds of weather. It sounds inhuman, but yet in refutation, the railroad companies ask whether the soldier should carry an umbrella when it rains or the sailor be allowed to work under an awning. The claim is that the railroad employes become inured to severe weather, and the absence of covering keeps them constantly alert, so that danger from inattention to the possibility of danger, is reduced to a minimum. This may do in merry England, but in this country, especially in the west, the engineer could hardly bear to ride out a long trip with the glare of the furnace fire in his face and a temperature from twenty to fifty degrees below zero at his back, to say nothing of wind and snow. As a class, experienced railway engineers are as fine a lot of men as the republic can point to in any professional vocation. They are always cool and even tempered, usually good natured and kind hearted, though perhaps a bit rough; many are deep thinkers, due to their fixed habits of fixed attention to business and of long hours of enforced silence and of good morals. His clothes may be stained with oil, his hands black and his face grimy with smoke, but the peculiar and trying character of his profession demand that he must possess in the fullest degree those attributes which women love and all men admire, punctuality, courage and manliness.

The appointment of a joint inspector at New Haven will be made by the Wabash and confirmed by the Nickel Plate. The duties of such officers being to have charge of men and material and look after the transferring of freight at that point

The Nickel Plate road, in its earnings last year far exceeded any former year, and this surplus money has gone into the roadbed and equipment. B. W. Caldwell, president, tells the Van derbilts that he will begin to talk dividends with them, probably this year.

The deceased had been ailing for over a year, but was not considered dangerous until Sunday evening, when she was taken with la grippe and sank rapidly. She was eighty years old.

At 2 o'clock yesterday morning Engineer H. A. Durnoll, of the Pittsburg, slipped on the ice at the corner of Lewis and Calhoun street, and in the fall sustained a fracture of the bones of his left leg. Mr. Durnoll had just come in from his run and was on his way home when the accident happened. He was alone and was compelled to creep a considerable distance to a house, where he aroused the inmates by tapping upon the window. A hack was called and the injured man removed to his home where the fracture was reduced.

George B. Roberts, president of the roads in the Pennsylvania system east and west of Pittsburg, stated to a reporter of the Philadelphia Inquirer that James McCrea, first vice president of the Pennsylvania company, has been authorized to expend $1,250,000 for additional trackage, passenger cars and locomotives on lines west of Pittsburg. The policy of the road is to do away with all grade crossings, and the bridge across the Delaware will be widened for four tracks. The expenditure for the Trenton cut-off will exceed $1,000,000, but it was necessary for the relief of the main line and the New York division. The Broad street station will be enlarged shortly. The car movement, the largest in the company's history, is being hauled without difficulty.

is about the quantity nature allows to an adult person. It is of the utmost importance that the blood should be kept as pure as possible. By its remarkable cures of scrofula, salt rheum, etc., Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven its claim to be the best blood purifier.

For a general family cathartic we confidently recommend Hood's Pills. They should be in every home medicine chest.

New York, May 8th, 1883.

Several times this winter I have suffered from severe colds on my lungs. Each time I have applied ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTERS, and in every instance I have been quickly relieved by applying one across my chest and one on my back. My friends, through my advice, have tried the experiment and also found it most successful. I feel that I can recommend them most highly to any one who may see fit to try them.

Safety in the Midst of Danger.

This would seem a contradiction—it is so, in fact, to the eye. But experience has proved its possibility. Take the case of the individual who dwells in a malarious region. A robust constitution is no certain defence against the dreaded chills. What is? Recorded testimony, covering a period little short of half a century, proves that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is precisely this. This confident claim does not limit the field where the medicine has proved its efficacy. In south America, the Isthmus of Panama, Mexico, everywhere in fact, where miasma lurks, disease takes on its most obstinate and formidable types, the Bitters is a recognized specific in inevitable demand, and prescribed by physicians of repute. Potent too, it is in disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, and against that destroyer, la grippe. It improves appetite and sleep, neutralizes rheumatism and kidney complaints.

A Prince's Newspaper Widow.

Lady journalists have now become so numerous that they may be interested to hear of the death of a fellow worker, who was the pioneer of feminine writers on newspapers in Belgium. Literary work evidently served with Mme. Caroline Hoppy, for she lived to be eighty odd years of age. She founded The Journal de Bruges, the first French journal in Flanders, and wrote poetry in her leisure moments.

May Be Happy When Married.

Fried calves' liver is said to be a favorite dish of Prince Albert Victor, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales. Princess Mary of Teck is said to be fond of bacon, so when the two are wed they can, like Jack Spratt and his wife, "scrape the platter clean" always provided that the breakfast dish is liver and bacon.

The latest news from Trinity Croft is that private that. It has supplanted baccarat.

Dr. McCullough's Memory.

At the meeting of the faculty of the Fort Wayne College of Medicine at Taylor university yesterday afternoon, the following resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Dr Howard McCullough were adopted.

WHEREAS, our beloved friend and colleague Dr Howard McCullough has been taken from us by death, when he had as yet scarcely more than crossed the threshold of a brilliant and useful professional life, and

WHEREAS, He had been associated with us as professor of physiology and clinical medicine for several years, which position he filled with such ability as to bring great credit to our school, and

WHEREAS, We recognize that in his death the student have lost an able teacher and friend, the school a professional brother, and his many patrons a tried and trusted physician, therefore be it

Resolved That the life of Howard McCullough was one worthy of emulation

Resolved, That while our sorrow at his death is great, yet it is mitigated by the happiness which comes of the thought that we once knew him and had him with us

Resolved That we extend to the father and other relatives of the deceased our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That the lecture room where in our dead colleague taught be draped in mourning for the remainder of the present term

Resolved That these resolutions be transcribed in the records of the college, that a copy be given the father of the deceased and that they be published in the daily papers of the city
